

This is Your Biggest Market

MORE people—more industries—more wealth—are concentrated in “The Erie Area” than in any comparable section of America.

In this great industrial heart served by the Erie Railroad are four of the six largest American cities—26 cities with more than 100,000 population.

Fourteen of the 29 largest manufacturing areas of the country are located in the six states comprising this region. And nearly half the volume of all American manufactured products are produced here.

This is your biggest market—the place for realizing your plans for immediate and postwar industrial expansion.

With its natural resources to furnish an endless supply of raw materials and these great markets right at hand, no wonder industry finds “The Erie Area” offers unsurpassed advantages.
